Sadat Says Raid on Missile Site Killed 6 Russians

CAIRO, Jan. 4 (Reuters).—Egyptian President Anwar Sadat admitted today that Soviet troops manned Egyptian missile sites and said they were killed in a raid 20 miles south of Cairo. Mr. Sadat made the first public acknowledgment that Russian soldiers had been killed in Egypt while addressing a public rally at the Nile Delta...

Rogers at UN, Asks Mideast Truce and Take-Over May Renew Talks Tomorrow

UNITED NATIONS N.Y., Jan. 4 (AP).—Secretary of State William P. Rogers today urged Egypt, Israel and the United States to approach the Middle East peace talks with a serious determination to achieve a settlement with "flexibility and realism." Rogers told reporters that the United States believes there is a real possibility of agreement on which the parties can build. He spoke at a press conference for about 40 minutes with UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim...

Soviet Scientists Invited to Trial Of Angela Davis

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (NYT).—The U.S. government has proposed to 14 leading Soviet scientists that they attend as "observers" the forthcoming murder trial of Angela Davis, the black Communist militant, to assure themselves of the fairness of the proceedings. The offer, authorized by President Nixon, was contained in a letter to the 14 men from the assistant secretary of state for European affairs, Martin J. Hillenbrand, the State Department confirmed yesterday. It was an immediate response to a cablegram sent to Mr. Nixon on Dec. 25 by the Soviet group...

Responsibility Laid to 4 in Laporte Death

MONTEREAL, Jan. 4 (AP).—Paul and Jacques Rose, Francis Simard and Bernard Lortie were found culpably responsible in a coroner's verdict delivered today for the death of Pierre Laporte. The verdict was the first Communist all-passenger liner to visit New York in more than 20 years. It arrived today with 397 passengers. IIA president Thomas W. Gleason protested in a telegram to President Nixon the admission of "a vessel that floats in a sea of blood."

10,000 Blocked at Heathrow European Weather Is So Bad Many Tourists Can't Leave It

PARIS, Jan. 4 (AP).—The mercury hit record lows in parts of Italy and Spain today as the new year's frosts maintained an icy grip on most of Europe. France struggled slowly back to normal with many vacationing motorists' driving in snow. Bound cars for a rail trip back to work. An airline official surveying the packed terminals said: "It looks like one big zombie land. We are just having to humor them, feed them and water them until we can get the airlines away." Fog in London, where thick fog covered London, 10,000 passengers were reported stranded at Heathrow Airport. Inside airport buildings, passengers lined up in huge snake-like queues for catch-as-catch-can food. Lucky holders of seats in the lounges were afraid to leave them for fear of ending up on the concrete floors. In the international lounge the heating failed and the temperature dropped below 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

Part of Peace Settlement France Urges Diplomatic Ties between Arab States, Israel

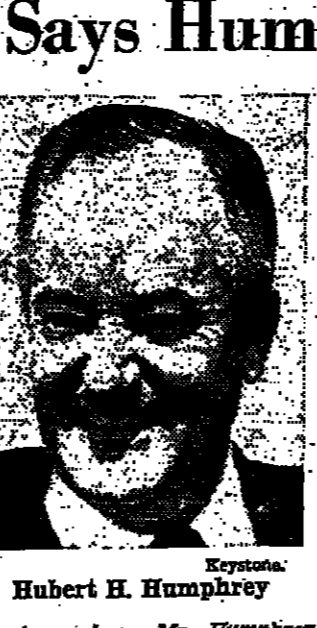

PARIS, Jan. 4 (UPI).—Foreign Minister Maurice Coussigne today called for the establishment of diplomatic relations between the Arab states and Israel as part of a Middle East settlement. The sources suggested that France may now have new interest in the improvement of Franco-Israeli relations, which have been bad since the Middle East war of June 1967. Tomorrow, Asher Ben-Nathan, the Israeli ambassador, will have his first working meeting with Foreign Minister Maurice Coussigne since the Israeli's arrival here Oct. 19. Mr. Pompidou said he feared the two sides in the Middle East were moving toward a real solution but toward what he called a "lasting provisional solution" which would eventually bring new hostilities.

Cigarettes Cost 5 1/2 Years Of Life, British Doctors Say

LONDON, Jan. 4 (UPI).—With all the authority of his pre-eminent position in medicine, the Royal College of Physicians today demanded immediate action against cigarette smoking as a killer responsible for the deaths of at least 20,000 persons a year in Britain alone. In an extensive report held up for a year for double-checking of facts, figures and conclusions, the institution said that the average man was paying for the cigarette smoking habit with five-and-one-half years of his life. Most of the 148 pages of the report, "Smoking and Health Now," concentrated on cigarettes. "Pipes and cigars appear to do little harm to health," it said. "It is likely that cigarette smokers who change over to these would benefit." The report, the first on the subject by the Royal College since 1962, said cigarette smoking was as important a cause of death today as the great epidemic diseases of typhoid, cholera and tuberculosis were to earlier generations. The most important challenge of the era for preventive medicine is to persuade people to stop smoking, the report said. It was signed by Lord Rosenheim, president of the Royal College and 12 other distinguished doctors and scientists. Although the report contained no startling revelations, British health officials are hoping it will lend impetus to a campaign to stop smoking—a drive which has had little effect here in the last four years. During the same period, nearly one in four regular smokers in America has dropped the habit. The report recommended cutting down cigarette advertising, forbidding smoking in public gathering places and in transport, including airplanes; reducing life insurance premiums for non-smokers, printing health warnings on cigarette packs, establishment of smoking clinics and research into cigarettes with less tar and nicotine. It also suggested the study of a differential tax on tobacco to make cigarettes more costly. It gave this advice to those who insist on smoking: smoke fewer cigarettes, inhale less, take fewer puffs, take the cigarette out of the mouth between puffs, smoke brands with low nicotine and tar content.

Rockefeller Says Humphrey Offered 2d Place

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UPI).—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York yesterday confirmed one of the disputed incidents of the 1968 national campaign. The Republican governor said that he had rejected an opportunity to run for vice-president on the Democratic ticket led by Hubert H. Humphrey. Sources close to Mr. Humphrey, who has just been re-elected to the U.S. Senate from Minnesota, confirmed for the first time that Gov. Rockefeller had been seriously considered as a running-mate and that Mr. Humphrey had "encouraged" two direct overtures to the governor. According to Gov. Rockefeller's account, offered casually in response to questions after the television program "Meet the Press" governor said that Mr. Humphrey made the offer immediately before or after he had won the presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention. Consideration Denied Asked if he had considered the offer seriously, Gov. Rockefeller replied, "No, I'm a Republican." Mr. Humphrey could not be reached for comment. Close associates said that they were unaware that the offer had been made as flattery as Gov. Rockefeller has suggested but that they knew of Mr. Humphrey's interest. "It didn't reach the point of an offer, said one of Mr. Humphrey's long-standing friends here, who insisted that he not be named, "but my own personal judgment is that if [Gov. Rockefeller] had been interested, it might have taken the form of an offer." "It was the kind of thing Hum-

5,000 Flee, 24 Dead in Malaysia Floods

KUALA LUMPUR, Jan. 4 (UPI).—At least 5,000 people were evacuated from more than 30 persons from flooded villages in the Kuala Lumpur area after one of the worst monsoon rains in the region since 1951. Flood water came up to 10 feet in some places. Official reports said at least 24 persons had been killed as a result of heavy rains since Dec. 20. In Singapore, 22 persons were killed as a result of a tidal wave that capsized in the harbor.

Was Scheduled for Tomorrow Russians Reportedly Delay 2d Trial of Leningrad Jews

MOSCOW, Jan. 4 (UPI).—Soviet authorities have postponed the trial of nine Leningrad Jews that had been scheduled to begin Wednesday, informed sources said today. The sources offered no reason for the postponement, but other officials said the trial would be held on Jan. 6. The court-martial and the postponed trial were a continuation of a series of prosecutions growing out of the hijacking plot. The Russians arrested more than 40 persons in Leningrad, Riga, Kishinev and Odessa after the hijacking plan was foiled June 15. Tass Assails Mrs. Meir MOSCOW, Jan. 4 (UPI).—The Soviet Union today attacked Premier Golda Meir, Israel and the American press for continued criticism of the sentences in the Leningrad hijacking trial. Tass, the official Soviet press agency, published a commentary that accused American newspapers of taking money from arms manufacturers in return for publishing information favorable to Israel.

16 Czechs Defect On Europe Tour

BONN, Jan. 4 (Reuters).—Sixteen members of a group of 68 Czechoslovak tourists slipped away during a European holiday tour and have decided to stay in the West, police reported today. West German frontier police at Munich airport said that the group of how the Czechoslovaks left their tour—as it passed through Amsterdam, Brussels and Paris—came from one of the group who defected in Munich. The 15 other persons left the group in Holland, Belgium or France during the air, bus and train tour over the Christmas-New Year holiday period.

Agnew Denounces Liberals, 'Pavlovian' Ire Against Him

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UPI)—President Spiro T. Agnew said today that he is accused of dividing the country because he is the foremost articulator of the reaction of liberal dogma at the present, and there are reflexes to attack the source of the heresy. "It happens to be I," he said.

5-Day Week? Bosses for It, Workers, Too

By Lesley Oelsner
NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (NYT)—Five days a week, 12 1/2 hours a day. Or five days a week, seven eight hours a day? Most workers never have a choice. But some beginning to, and for the small growing number who now have almost had it.

Mr. Agnew said that some of the things he has been called "are much worse than the utterances I've made." He said a politician called him "two-bit" but he said he was not a politician. He said he was not a politician. He said he was not a politician.

More Snow Due for U.S. Blizzard Area

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP)—A raging winter storm that spread foot-deep snow from the Rockies to the Great Lakes, stranding thousands of holiday-bound travelers, dumped more snow today on the nation's midsection.

Mr. Agnew said Sen. J. William Fulbright, D. Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called him "some sort of smart Alec" during the Vice-President's diplomatic trip to Asia.

Sen. Muskie Misses a Plane, But Picks Up Hungry Votes

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Sen. Edmund Muskie, embarking on a two-week trip to the Middle East, and the Soviet Union designed to boost his credentials as a presidential candidate next year ran afoul of the London fog today, but may have gained some votes from young Americans while here.

Sen. Muskie's overnight flight from Washington to Frankfurt, where he was to take a West German plane to meet Foreign Minister Walter Scheel in the Austrian Alps, made a stop at London airport and then was grounded by fog.

While the senator, his wife and small party waited in vain in an airport lounge for the thick fog to lift, a group of about 25 young American students awaiting a flight home after a skiing vacation asked him.

SOUND OF MOURNING—Some 300 members of the Outlaws motorcycle club roared into Louisville, Ky., last weekend to bury one of their members, who was killed in a traffic accident last week. The Outlaws, who came from at least seven states, gave their departed friend a 30-second gun salute during the dignified ceremony.

N.Y. Judge Offers to Mediate City's Dispute With Firemen

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—A New York State Supreme Court justice today offered to mediate legal tangles between the Uniformed Firefighters Association and the city. Both sides immediately accepted his offer on the fourth day of job action by 11,300 firemen.

Spokesmen for the union said that the strike was the first called by the union since it was chartered in 1889.

In another development, approximately 2,000 of the city's schoolteachers went on strike today, in their second walkout in three years, to support demands for higher pay, better discipline and smaller classes.

The teachers, members of the Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers, set up picket lines at the city's 110 schools at 7 a.m. Negotiations were to continue today.

Mass. Hospital To Freeze Blood For Donor's Use

BOSTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Massachusetts General Hospital yesterday announced approval of a blood-freezing process that allows a person to store up to six pints of his own blood with a hospital for possible future use.

It was the first time that the federal government had licensed such a procedure, the hospital said, and clears the way for demonstrating the safety and effectiveness of frozen blood.

Under the new method, large stocks of frozen blood can be built up to tide hospitals over periods of critical shortages, Dr. Morten Grove-Rasmussen, director of the hospital's blood bank, said.

More Snow Due for U.S. Blizzard Area

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP)—A raging winter storm that spread foot-deep snow from the Rockies to the Great Lakes, stranding thousands of holiday-bound travelers, dumped more snow today on the nation's midsection.

Outside the blizzard belt, a record 16.4 inches of snow fell in a 24-hour period on Moline, Ill., and 16 inches hoisted Harmony, Mo., White Rock, W. Mo., near Sallisaw, reported 15 inches.

O'Hare International Airport in Chicago closed for a time, then resumed operations with flights subject to delays. Chicago's Midway Airport was closed, as was the field at Lincoln, Neb.

A light plane crash near Starks, Utah, tentatively attributed to fierce winds and low visibility, killed two persons. Winds were reported up to 65 miles an hour.

New Daily Paper Appears in N.Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (UPI)—A new morning newspaper, the Daily Mirror, appeared on New York streets today.

It featured 22 pages of news, syndicated columns, including Walter Winchell, who came out of retirement, and comics. It bears a name similar to that of a Hearst publication, the New York Mirror, which ceased operations seven years ago.

Brazil Weeds Out (Oops!) Slang Drug References

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 4 (AP)—In an effort to stop the spread of a drug culture in Brazil, the federal Censorship Department announced today that it will prohibit use of drug-related words in newspapers, magazines and books, and on the radio and television.

Even comic books and cartoons with drug references were expected to be affected by the new measures, intended to do away with drug slang. Many English-language words were also expected to be censored, including the title of a Beatles song, "Lucy in the Sky With Diamonds," which according to the censors has the initials "LSD."

Songs from "Woodstock" and "Easy Rider" were also expected to be censored.

1. WHO SAYS BIG BUSINESS DOESN'T HAVE A SENSE OF HUMOR?
2. South wins the first trick with the spade king when East plays the jack. The play of the king leaves West guessing about the location of the queen, while the converse would not be true. The declarer now wishes he had bid less optimistically. His only chance is to assume that East has the diamond king and West the heart ace. He therefore leads a heart at the second trick, a highly risky but necessary move. When West ducks his partner from the dummy, holding his breath until this wins the trick. South's first prayer has been answered, and some technical care is needed. The next lead must be the diamond nine for the finesse. When the nine wins the queen is led, and the declarer can keep the lead in dummy for a third finesse. If South had made the mistake of leading the diamond queen for the first finesse he would have had no satisfactory way to keep the lead in dummy for the third finesse. Unblocking the jack or ten does not help, because East can cover the nine next time and promote a trick for his eight.

BRIDGE — By Alan Truscott

South has a 19-point hand that is too strong for one no-trump, so he opens with one diamond in third seat and has a problem when North raises to two diamonds.

Most players would take a chance on the heart weakness and bid a conservative two no-trump. Three no-trump would be defeated by a heart lead, but West would have no reason to do anything but lead a spade.

South wins the first trick with the spade king when East plays the jack. The play of the king leaves West guessing about the location of the queen, while the converse would not be true. The declarer now wishes he had bid less optimistically. His only chance is to assume that East has the diamond king and West the heart ace. He therefore leads a heart at the second trick, a highly risky but necessary move. When West ducks his partner from the dummy, holding his breath until this wins the trick. South's first prayer has been answered, and some technical care is needed. The next lead must be the diamond nine for the finesse. When the nine wins the queen is led, and the declarer can keep the lead in dummy for a third finesse. If South had made the mistake of leading the diamond queen for the first finesse he would have had no satisfactory way to keep the lead in dummy for the third finesse. Unblocking the jack or ten does not help, because East can cover the nine next time and promote a trick for his eight.

The key to the hand is the "guess" in hearts. South must recognize that if East has the heart ace the defenders are likely to take one heart trick and four spade tricks in any event. If the heart play goes wrong the contract will fall by about five tricks, but that is life.

For a man who saw as many bad plays as Nathan did, his involvement and concern for his subject will always be a surprise. There isn't a tired line in a thousand pages. He could be devastating, but he was never bored. Of one ill-conceived "Ghost," he wrote of the Nora that when she walked out on her household and slammed the door, the audience rose as one man and rushed to the institution to contribute her husband. And in reviewing a play by an English colleague, Charles Morgan, a once popular novelist and drama critic, he took the play apart with such exquisite surgical precision as to leave nothing over but the title and a few bare bones.

He could be loquacious, and if his imagination latched on to a fancy conceit he would dance around like a fencing master playing with an amateur, nicking the skin here, slashing an ear off there and generally bloodying up the poor man before putting him at his ease with a lethal lunge. He was formidably learned, and would bettle anyone, as the saying goes, who made even a casual assertion about the theater not warranted by the facts. Nathan would bury him under information to the contrary.

All this unflattering interest is surprising in a way because he was a man of few enthusiasms. There wasn't when you finally come down to it, very much that he liked. He was not a man of wide or generous taste. His occasional remarks about modern music, art or poetry show him to have been a philistine on the order of Lewis's Babbitt. In the '30s when the material for these books was written, he held up to ridicule a piece of free verse and announced his unqualified support for Shelley, Keats and Swinburne.

And his remarks about Picasso could have come from a big butter-and-egg man from Fort Wayne, Ind. (where Nathan was born).

He never tired of asserting that serious theater was for the educated few, but he seemed to think that anyone could get into the act in the other arts. He put the movies on the same level as detective fiction and soap opera, and in an essay after essay he disposed of the subject for what he thought would be the last time.

If he believed a playwright was more interested in persuading him to a point of view rather than in constructing the best play he knew how, he would peel his hide. Since the time was the 30s, he engaged in a running battle with the leftist playwrights: John Wexley, John Howard Lawson, Albert Bein, Albert Maltz and others he called "the little re-writing hoods."

He credited Clifford Odets with stirring dialogue and a few memorable characters but he thought his utterances about the theater generally were puerile. Judging from the quotations he cites, they were.

He did admire O'Neill an O'Casey. He had come to be early and remained steadfast in his admiration, although he distinguished the good from the bad. He liked Lillian Hellman, "The Children's Hour" and "The Little Foxes." He enjoyed the well-made comedies of N. Behrman. He hated aesthetic pretensions and theatricalisms of all kinds. He was suspicious of theory.

Nathan was a cheer leader—he was an appraiser from the 50-year line. But he knew more about the game than many a player who had to look up to the board to see what the scam was.

What's in a Name?

WASHINGTON—One of the most fascinating things that is taking place in America's youth culture is that no one knows anybody else's last name. The fact that American children consider last names irrelevant seems to drive parents up the wall.

Art Buchwald

"The question arose," Zinzer said, "because Ellen wanted to go on a three-day ski trip with Betsy, Theresa, Randy and Steve. By some freak accident she knows Betsy's and Theresa's last names but all she knows about Randy is that he lives in Virginia and Steve lives in Baltimore. For two days we've been arguing about 'Randy of Virginia' and 'Steve from Baltimore.' You might say I'm having an identity crisis."

"I guess it is tough on a father not to know a boy's last name," I said. "It probably wouldn't be a problem if she just knew one Steve. But she knows three. There is also 'Steve Who Works in the Carry Out Shop' and 'Steve, the Cousin of Tina.'" "Tina who?" "That's the problem. She doesn't know Tina's last name either."

"Maybe Ellen isn't good on last names." "It isn't just Ellen. My 15-year-old daughter, Miki, is just as bad. The other night she asked to sleep over at the house of a girl she goes to school with named Karen. I suggested we call Karen's parents to see if it was okay. Miki said she didn't have Karen's telephone number. I said we could look it up in the telephone book, but Miki said she didn't know Karen's last name. As a matter of fact, the only thing she knew about Karen was that her family had a house in Nag's Head, North Carolina."

So now we have to refer to Miki's friend as Karen, Whose Family Owns a House at Nag's Head, North Carolina. You have to admit that's a mouthful. "My son Chris," said Zinzer, "is not any better. He went up to New York last week with 'Bruce Who Owns Elm 15 Dollars' and 'Lita Who Flirts the Drums in Some Band.' And 'David Who Got Kicked Out of School.'"

"Does Chris use his last name?" I asked. "I don't believe so. The other night I picked up the phone and the person on the other end of the line asked if 'Chris Whose Father Worked for the Government' was home." Zinzer's 15-year-old daughter, Ellen, came back in the room. "His name is Steve Jackson," she said angrily. "And what's Randy from Virginia's last name?" Zinzer asked. "Ellen started crying again. 'I know you wouldn't let me go skiing in the first place.'"

The Enterprising Inmates of Tijuana Jail

By Charles Hillinger

TIJUANA, Mexico.—The unique penitentiary of the Mexican state of Baja California, located in this border city, probably has the largest voluntary population of any prison in the world. The "Tijuana Jail" celebrated in an American folk song has its own restaurants and grocery stores, and some of the "inmates" are wives, children or lovers of prisoners; they came to visit loved ones and decided to stay.

Women spend time alone with prisoners, sometimes staying several days in private rooms. Children live inside prison walls with their mothers. Many prisoners keep pets. Affluent inmates who dislike prison fare may cook their own meals in prison "motels" rooms from food purchased at the prisoner-owned and operated grocery stores and meat market.

Most ordinary prisoners, it is true, center their existence on an earthen jail yard, called the "tank," where prisoners sleep on bunks or the floor, 150 men to a "tank." There is also a women's section.

A 'Motel'

But for the La Mesa Penitentiary's substantial privileged class, home is the two-story concrete motel-like structures where prisoners who can afford it live in private suites, or live two, three, four or five to a small room.

Free enterprise reigns all over the prison yard. There are ten small grocery stores, a meat market, two stands, two restaurants, clothing and shoe stores—all prisoner-owned and operated.

provides box lunches for these prisoners, as the Mexican government's food allowance comes to only $2 per inmate a week. One prisoner has the La Mesa Pepsi Cola distributorship. Barbara, an American, is the La Mesa distributor for Beauty Consultants, a cosmetic supply house.

Deliveries

Trucks roll in and out of the yard delivering canned goods, fresh vegetables and meat to the prisoner merchants, delivering supplies to the prisoner factories or calling for finished products.

No prison uniform here. You wear what you like. It's the busiest penitentiary in Mexico, maybe in the world.

The activity started four years ago when Antonio Martinez, 51, a certified public accountant and life-long businessman, was named warden.

Tall and rangy with salt-and-pepper hair, Mr. Martinez is known to prisoners, and officials as "Flako"—Spanish for "skinny."

"There were problems before," he said, explaining his program to encourage prisoners to work and earn money. "Prisoners were sitting around idle. It brewed trouble. I'm a firm believer in free enterprise."

"Many now make better money in here as prisoners than they could be making on the outside at comparable jobs."

Tuesday is ladies' day at the penitentiary, a day set aside for conjugal visits by wives and girl friends—or in the case of women prisoners, by husbands and boy-friends. Visitors may stay six hours inside prison walls on ladies' day. The more affluent prisoners will spend time with their sweethearts in the "motel" room.

On occasion a wife or girl friend will spend several consecutive days and nights inside prison gates in the privacy of a well-to-do prisoner's "motel" room.

Thursdays and Sundays are family days, and the prison is packed with all kinds of visitors—children, relatives, friends. There's a fiesta atmosphere about La Mesa on these days. Spilling marisquite bands, family groups, and groups in arm around the prison grounds, filling the restaurants, or sitting around the gasbo in the gardens, the prison park listening to a concert, and the conjugal privileges are in effect, too.

Shouters

Shouts ring through the prison yard—another of Mr. Martinez's enterprises at work: Shouters charge visitors or fellow prisoners a nominal fee to dash through the prison shouting someone's name the easiest way to locate a person in La Mesa.

Half the 47 inmates in the La Mesa penitentiary are awaiting sentence or serving time for convictions involving marijuana or narcotics. "Mexican law is strict regarding marijuana and narcotics," notes Tijuana attorney Ricardo Gilbert Herrera. "It's a federal offense."

Vicky, 19, came to La Mesa last June to visit her American boyfriend, who is serving a year and six months for possessing 88 pounds of marijuana. She never left. And as a result of her "visits" with the friend, she is pregnant.

When the child is born, Vicky may keep the baby with her in jail. "I let mothers keep their children with them if that's their wish," explains Mr. Martinez. "I feel morally it helps the mothers to have the children close by."

Pre-Mayan City Found in Mexico By American

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 4 (UPI).—An American archaeologist said today that he has discovered the ruins of an ancient city on the Mexican side of the Yucatan peninsula dating from about 500 B.C., approximately 1,000 years older than the Mayan ruins of Chichen-Itza.

The archaeologist, Jeffrey Wilkerson, said that other evidence found in excavating the ruins indicated man had been in the area as early as 3,000 B.C.

Mr. Wilkerson said excavation of the city in northeastern Veracruz state involved digs as much as 65 feet deep. He and his colleagues found walls, building facades, statues, spears, arrowheads and various types of pottery as well as skeletal remains of inhabitants.

Mr. Wilkerson identified the inhabitants of the city as Totonaques. The Totonaques preceded the Mayans, who founded Chichen-Itza about A.D. 830 and subsequently built that city into a major site of Mayan civilization.

PEOPLE: The Poignant Story Of the Week

Fifteen years residence on the hallowed soil of this terrible land, and we were beginning to suspect a certain lack of sense of humor on the part of the natives. Then we got this people in our can of mixed vegetables. All right, he thought. It was a little bit of a joke. It was a little bit of a joke. It was a little bit of a joke.

From the desk of Jules Pedell, owner of New York's Copacabana nightclub: "The amount of sleep required by the average man is always one hour more."

Bob Hope he's not, but in his own modest way, the King of the Belgians, too, is not a man to forget the boys overseas. According to a widely-overlooked AP dispatch, Bandanna and Queen Fabiola "arrived in Munich for a private visit today in a Belgian military aircraft."

It all began to become unstruck one suspects, when the co-educational University of Chicago hired as Assistant Dean of Students an earnest young educator named James W. Vice. Among Vice's wards, it turns out, was a stable synd of swingers known as the Students for Violent Non-Action, 147 of whom "burned out the other night for a student council at the university pool. Given the requisite number of raised eyebrows round and about the quad, Vice himself was called upon to interpret the redeeming value of the nude-revelry. "It was all very good-natured," he explained. "The students, he said, had permission to use the pool since I don't think anyone ever thought to write a rule against this sort of thing. They gambled in the chlorine for several hours. He added, then, lathered up together in the showers and headed home. And given the dean so familiar with the particulars of aquatic bacchanalia? "Well," said Vice, "I just walked over to see what was coming off."

A New Comet TOKYO, Jan. 4 (AP).—A Japanese amateur astronomer has discovered a new comet, the first discovered in the Virgin constellation. His discovery was immediately confirmed by the Tokyo Astrophysical Observatory and the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., according to the paper Yomiuri Shimbun.
